DOUBLE SNOWSHOE WEEKEND - #2

This weekend was my second two-race weekend this year. When the snow is out there (and it certainly is this year) you've got to take advantage.

I headed up to Sandwich NH for the first race of the weekend. On the way I stopped at the Rattlesnake Mountains on Squam Lake. My plan was to get in a couple of mile to loosen up then head over to the race. I ended up running more than four miles to bag both summit and was a little late when I arrived at Sandwich.

I quickly registered and headed out for a nice easy 2m run on the roads. After a quick change into racing gear I headed out for another mile on snowshoes. I did four or five strides and felt a bit flat. The first mile of the course is fairly flat and well groomed so it was going to be fast.

Paul Kirsch sent the record crowd (I remember running this race with less than 30 finishers) of over 100 racers off on the 4- miles of scenic Sandwich. Jim Johnson sprinted to the front as usual and I found myself in about 10th right away. I slowly worked my way up and just before we hit the single-track I put in a big surge to get into 8th. The single-track starts with the only real climb of the race and I found myself running down a couple of guys. They both moved partly off the trail when I called "on your left" and by the top of the hill I found myself in 6th.

The snow was very sugary and traction was not the greatest. I love those conditions as it slows the faster guys down. I slowly moved up on Ryan Kelley (who had out-kicked me at Whitaker Woods last week). I nearly caught him when we hit the final descent at which point he accelerated like mad and any chance of catching him disappeared. I held on for a solid 6th place. Jim held his lead for a good portion of the race but was passed by Kevin Tilton in the last half-mile. Kevin has now won at Sidehiller five consecutive times!

I did a nice easy warm-down with Jim Pawlicki then hit the road with half the racing but nowhere near half the driving done.

I woke up on Sunday a bit sore from Sidehiller but game to give it a shot. Curly's Record Run is one of my favorite WMAC races. The course really suits my abilities with a tough climb and a short (but crazy steep) descent. I picked up JJ and we headed West with me telling Jim "I've run there" at every town line we passed. He never gave me the satisfaction of getting tired of it. Damn!

Anyway, we headed out for an easy 3m road warm-up and both of us were complaining about how tired we were. I changed into race gear and headed out for another mile on snowshoes. The race was held up for about 15 minutes as people were arriving late. Everything takes longer at a snowshoe race and racers really need to plan accordingly. I took advantage of the extra time and ran up and down the field packing down a path for myself. The only powder on the course would be in the first 100m, the rest would be firmly packed single-track.

A record crowd of 117 took off like a shot! Jim headed out to the front despite telling me his plan was to take it easy for the first couple of miles. I was in 6th as we hit the road and started to climb. I passed Tim Mahoney soon after then slowly ran down a couple of the faster starters. Actually it was more like "walked down" as none of us were moving very fast on the climb. I steadily closed on Ross Krause but couldn't quite catch him. At 17 minutes I hit the top of the climb and then the craziness starts.

"Curly's Record Run" is named for Curly Voll who set the course record of 1:10 to descend the Shadow trail. The trail was used in the 1920's for ski races and drops 800' over 4/10ths of a mile. I don't know how the skiers stayed on the trail, it was difficult in snowshoes. Mostly I just tried to get down without totally blowing out my back. I hit the bottom and the few little climbs left really had me gasping for breath. I couldn't see Ross anymore but I knew that Tim M was not far behind. I kept working as hard as I could and took my second 40+ victory in two days (thanks to Tim Van Orden deciding to "jog through" Curly's).

JJ ended up with a solid victory (ah, to be young and able to race fast back-to-back), he'll be looking to lock up the WMAC series soon. Tim Mahoney joined us for another 2 miles on the road before we called it a day and hit the car for the 3 hour drive home.

CURLEY'S RECORD RUN 2011

Kenny Clark, Farmer Ed, and I got to the Pittsfield State Forest about an hour and a half before the race because there are certain things we like to have plenty of time to do. The first and foremost is a visit to the porta-potty that is on the road to the left at the entrance. The seat is typically so cold that when you touch it with your tongue it freezes tight. It only took me once to teach me not to do it again.

On the way up I told Farmer Ed that he was stupid for getting Bob Birk's name wrong as "Birkby" when he was credited for the pictures. When I saw Birk before the race I told him the Ed got his name wrong. Birk told me that Ed was right. So I had to eat crow and tell Ed I was wrong and that I was the stupid one. Ed asked me if it had ever occurred to me that I might occasionally be wrong? I've known Birk for about 12 years and always thought his name was Bob Birk. That's the way his wife had introduced him to me. Anyway, he helps take good pictures of all us snowshoers.

I fear this course because I find the first half to be so difficult going up the mountain. I know my lungs are going to burn like heck, but I have to keep on going. I'm tired by the time I get across the start field to the road.

I was all decked out in my black Dion fleece vest and my black Dion hat. I looked like somebody that was a sponsored racer. I cruised by the Dion Rav 4 on my way to find another pee place displaying all my stuff. My pee place was a short jaunt out the Lulu Brook Trail. I had to be careful though of being seen by people jogging up the road that overlooked the trail I was on. These days you can be labeled as a sex offender if you pee in public. Well, at least I'm in good company with all the trail runners who pee before a race.

The climb up the hill was indeed hard, but by the time we got to single-track trail people were pretty much in the position they should be in for the climb. You can't really pass anyone by charging around them in deep snow. In fact, if you are going up a hill and someone is breathing right on your heels, you should offer to let them pass. If they want to, then step off the trail and let them. Will Danecki, a real trail gentleman, let me do this on the way up the mountain. I returned the favor by letting him blast by on the steep downhill.

I was very impressed by what good condition the trail was in. I asked Brad Herder how that happened. It seems he got out on the trail himself to make good tracks along with a few other people. I suppose he wanted to do this so he wouldn't have to face slip-slide conditions.

On the downhill former ski slope Shadow Trail I gained a lot of distance on people behind me. However, when it turned to rolly poley a couple of women caught me. As one went by she touched me on the back in a sensual manner. I think this was to totally distract me, which it did. Seconds later she tripped, and fell down right in front of me. I slowed to offer her my hand, but she was up and gone before I got there.

I kept thinking I was gaining on Will Danecki because I could see him. But I think this was because the trail switched back and forth so you could see people that were actually ahead a bit.

I held my position after the two women passed me and finished not too far behind them. They were both sprinting for the finish ahead of me, one trying to overtake the other. After crossing the finish line I strolled off out of view to dry-heave and semi-puke. I got back to watching the finish line just quickly enough to see elder Farmer Ed trip just before the finish line. He was so slow to get up that I was thinking he could have rolled over and over faster to cross before the person behind him.

Well, now that my former competitor, Laurel Shortell, drubs me consistently, my new competitor is Laura Clark, who trashed me at Constitution Hill. I managed to finish ahead of Laura today.

I took my turn changing out of my wet clothes in the van. It's a pretty good system. Kenny Clark comes in way in the front, Farmer Ed comes in high a little ways behind Kenny, and I come in way behind both of them. This way we are all able to change in the van without standing in line. I'm wondering how much butt-sweat has soaked into Farmer Ed's middle van seat during these changes of clothes.

Post race stuff was good, and I discovered I won one of the raffle things by getting some really good banana bread. Dede Voll dipped some really good stuff out of a big pot for me to eat. Of course Curley was a social butterfly talking to everyone while wearing his traditional brown winter suit. At the food area I told Jessica Hageman that I liked her story in the last issue of SnoNews. It's always nice to have new writers for SnoNews. After the race I learned that Lee Ann Zarger is a social butterfly, making new friends and saving them from being totally lost in the forest overnight.

I've never seen so many cars stuck and off the road at a race before. Before we left we had to go push out two vehicles that were stuck. One was the famous Tom McCrumm, owner of the South Face Farm Sugar House, where we all eat after the Hawley Kiln Notch race. Even his posi-traction didn't save him that day. Going down the road to the exit of the forest the car in front of us swerved away from two women pedestrians only to go inches too far and get its left front wheel stuck off the edge of the road. After it got stuck one of the pedestrians fell down and we all laughed. Then a bunch of us from several cars got out to help the stuck guy. It turns out that Jessica Hageman was in the car, and I told her she had something new to write about now. We finally got them unstuck as Jessica shouted instructions through the open window to her boyfriend. Is this a sign of things to come? The woman is always boss!

On the way home I heard that two women were arguing in the parking lot before the race and one of them went home instead of racing. Wonder what that was all about? On the way home we all discovered that when we wear elastic waist-band pants they now fall down because our bellies have gotten fatter with age. Of course on the way home we ate coffee rolls and apple fritters with our Dunkin Donuts coffee from Lee.

We love snowshoeing!

Curly's Trivia: Two questions, whoever responds first with the correct answer to each will have a free entry to Moby Dick on February 19th. One question per person, edtrnews at yahoo.com

- 1) Who are the 4-people who have done all the Curly's races?
- 2) What year was Curly's not held in Pittsfield, and where was it actually held?

SKIING CURLY'S RECORD RUN ON SNOWSHOES

Memories light the corners of my mind...

Yes Virginia, there is a Father Winter and he spent the weekend at the Pittsfield State Forest to relive one of his favorite moments: when Curly Voll set the downhill ski record schussing Shadow Trail. Except this time snowshoers, not skiers, tested their mettle....

Once again, I was Jeff-less and Annie chauffeured Jen Ferris and me to the Forest. When I backed Annie out of her relatively cozy garage we were both surprised to discover that a light dusting of snow had fallen during the night. Nothing that Annie's sexy studs couldn't handle, but still slightly worrisome for the drive ahead. Not until we arrived at our destination, however, did the Massachusetts snow advance beyond the promised snow shower stage, reminding me of previous races when freshly falling snow was a major feature. But as Curly reflected, while the weather is never really ideal in his forest world, with the day's moderate temperatures, we really couldn't hope for anything better.

After we got Annie comfortably settled in, we headed for the registration table. Since my 2011 race number was securely tucked away in Jeff's car, I came prepared with my #23 bib from Constitution Hill. When I asked Beth if anyone else had claimed that number she told me I didn't need a number as she knew who I was. At last! I had achieved old-timer status. But with a certain penalty as it later turned out.

Initially, the course attacks a steep snowmobile incline similar to that at Woodford. I forgot how to breathe as I jockeyed for position, feeling as if all the air had been sucked out of me. All I could manage was a high degree of thankfulness that I rested up Saturday and didn't go skiing as planned. Now that I have the leisure to reflect, I imagine the punched-in-the-stomach feeling came from the urgency we all felt to make it to the single track before the hoards closed in. Not to mention the fact that we still had two more miles of significant uphill to conquer.

I spent most my time passing and re-passing Ed Alibozek, Jr. (the Elder—go figure). Or, viewed from a different perspective, Ed spent most of his race passing and re-passing me. I wonder if we could be awarded extra points for all the people we passed, even if they were the same ones over and over. At our age every point counts and it's not as if we're going to win the race.

Shadow Trail is part of a trio designed in days of old by the CCC, tripling with Ghost and Phantom Trails. Obviously they were not named after an early pioneer as in the case of Turner Trail, but more likely based upon scary CCC campfire stories. The trip down Shadow's powdery slope was worthy of a day out West. Much better than the Year of the Ice when Barbara Sorrell, just ahead of me, demonstrated her acrobatic skill by performing a complete somersault, landing handily on both feet and proceeding as if nothing had happened. I imagine when Curly raced Shadow the only shadow was his—if he had time to glance over his shoulder which he certainly didn't. But today, while the cloudy skies precluded shadows, we did have a similar experience with all the people on our tails skiing the soft powder on out-of-control snowshoes.

I learned something in this Year of the Powder: it is not a good idea to take off your outer mittens and tuck them into your waistband. I felt like one of those construction workers with the sagging jeans. The snow was not only cascading in a photographically pleasing arc over my body but the slight opening created by my mittens enabled snow to maneuver into my bareskinned nether regions. Not a pleasant sensation.

As we crossed the finish line, we were each treated to a homegrown Pittsfield Rye loaf of special edition bread baked in Curly's honor. Which was especially good for me since I had forgotten to purchase bread at the Saturday Farmer's Market, carbo-loading instead on almond pastries. But when I headed over to the raffle table I realized my old-timer status came with a price—my race number wasn't drawn since I didn't have one!

While I feel more tired after one snowshoe race than I did after the previous two weeks' doubleheaders (I skipped Sidehiller yesterday), at least I was prepared. On the drive over, I filled in Jen, a Curly's first timer, on all possible scenarios with the opposite effect from what I had intended. She immediately decided that the race was ridiculous and she would take it easy and try to survive. Barbara Sorrell, on the other hand, optimistically told her friend Lois Green, who was attempting her first snowshoe race, that the course was simply hilly, only to reveal it was a mountain well into the uphill. Firsts are special, whether it be tackling your first race or your first mountain. It was first-timers like these two who displayed true Curly's courage.

SARATOGA SPA SNOWSHOE RACE 2011 – WORSHAMER VIEW

They pulled into the Holyoke parking lot at 7:35am, and I held my breath. Would I be stuck in the back seat of a three-seat van with my legs trapped and cold for two hours? The door opened and I felt a sigh of relief come over me; Kenny Clark was in the back seat and I was going to be sharing the middle seat with Silverback Rich Busa. Farmer Ed was at the controls and Karl Molitoris was at shotgun. With my equipment stowed away we hit the road to Saratoga Springs. As I said once before in an article, I always feel like I'm going to the movie set of The Road to Wellsville when we head for Saratoga Springs SPA.

Konrad Karolczuk couldn't make the trip so it was up to Karl and me to navigate and slip money to Ed for tolls. It took two of us to fill Konrad's shoes; I was MapBoy and Karl handed the money over for tolls and manned the heater controls. I had fun arguing politics and philosophy with Karl while everyone else laughed at us for being so serious on the way to having fun. Properly chastened like two 8 year-olds, Karl and I started behaving ourselves. I couldn't be too hard on Karl; after all he gave me a big block of cough drops that will last me another year. Karl is The Man when it comes to cough drops. Everything there is to know about what can go wrong with a cough drop, Karl knows, and believe me there is a lot that he has to stay on top of. It's funny that on the way to SPA Busa is quite the talker. On the way back you can't keep him awake. I guess an 81 year-old guy does need his afternoon nap.

I hadn't been to SPA for quite a few years, and was thrilled to see it was staged from a much bigger space in a different building, and the course had slightly changed to give us more single track trail in the last three-quarters of a mile. I gave it my all and ran as hard as I could the whole race to get my finish position in the high 70s. As I was nearing the finish I came up behind Molitoris, who was walking. Of course as soon as he realized the finish was near he started running again and I couldn't muster the guts to catch him. He is the guy that was in shorts. Another surprising thing was that I came upon London Niles walking earlier in the race. London is a young kid who is a good snowshoer, but who needs to learn to pace himself over a course. After crossing the finish line I strolled back out that starting trail that we were on at the beginning so I could gag and puke without all the people at the finish line seeing me. As I was coming back, Barbarella Sorrel was finishing, then I lost track of her.

The temperature of the race was in the high 30s with no wind, so it was quite comfortable that day. Back at the car I waited for the Farmer to finish changing, then after I changed and got out of the car I ran into Barbarella in the parking lot. So instead of joining the others inside I just passed the time with her. Next thing I knew my other commuter pals were coming out to leave, so I never got inside to eat the good food. That's okay; we stopped at Stewart's on Route 9 before hitting I-87, and I got coffee and a big corn muffin. The others got ice cream. Before long we were back onto the Mass Pike headed east and I had the Silverback next to me sleeping with his mouth hanging open while I listened to stories about Georgie Hendricks and the old days.

All in all, it was a very good day. Thanks Laura and Jeff Clark for putting on a good race.

WISDOM AND FIGURES FROM DD

MILESTONES FROM SIDEHILLER:

Only one milestone from Sidehiller...

Finishes:

Laurel Shortell - 120 finishes.

Weird stat from the weekend: Kevin Tilton now has 5 wins in WMAC races. All of his wins are at Sidehiller. No one except Kevin has 5 wins in any one race. He is tied with Ken Clark for 10th most wins.

MILESTONES FROM CURLY'S:

Finishes:

Bill Glendon – 50 finishes.

Vincent Kirby – 40 finishes.

Tim Mahoney – 25 finishes.

Barbara Sorrell – 25 finishes.

Amy Lane – 20 finishes.

Points:

Jan Rancatti passes 2,000 Points w/ 2039.43.

JAN 29TH & 30TH SNOWSHOER OF WEEK:

My vote for Snowshoer of the Week goes to Jim Johnson. 2nd at Sidehiller and 1st at Curly's. His win at Curly's now ties him with Paul Low for the 4th most wins (12).

MILESTONES FROM NORTHFIELD MTN:

Finishes:

Jamie Howard – 45 finishes.

Tim Van Orden – 35 finishes.

Richard Teal – 30 finishes.

Brad Herder – 25 finishes.

Points:

Mike Lahey passes 5,000 Points w/ 5,039.55.

NORTHFIELD MTN R.D. NOTES:

The race would not have happened without the help of Ed Alibozek who assisted with registration, timing, and scoring. I also had a lot of help from Paul Bazanchuk and Abby Mahoney who marked the course with me on Friday. Paul also assisted at the finish line after having to bail from the race with back woes. Tim Mahoney, Eric Wight, and Tim Van Orden get special thanks for joining me for a final loop of the course to clear the flagging. It is never an easy task but much easier in a big group and certainly much more fun. Thanks all! Dave Dunham

MILESTONES FROM SPA WINTERFEST:

Finishes:

Ed Alibozek Jr 95 – finishes.

Mike Lahey 75 - finishes.

Richard Chipman 25 - finishes.

Andy Keefe 20 - finishes.

Points:

Laurel Shortell passes 4,000 Points w/4036.19

Jim Carlson passes 2,000 Points w/ 2,026.14

FEB 5TH & 6TH SNOWSHOER OF WEEK:

My vote for Snowshoer of the Week goes to Tim Van Orden. 1st place at both Northfield Mountain and Saratoga SPA Winterfest.

Tim Van Orden

Peter Lagoy and Ned James

Pat Rosier and Jamie Coyne
